The Ghana Early Child Development (ECD) Toolkit: Ages 0–3 was developed for the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) Maternal and Child Survival Program (MCSP) in Ghana. Caroline Dusabe and Romilla Karnati, MCSP/Save the Children, were the principal writers, with major contributions by Abdul Salam Kamil, Joachim Gornah, Rashida Ibrahim, and Pearl Allotey, MCSP, who also provided significant support to the pre-testing and technical adaptation of the tools in Ghana.

We acknowledge our local stakeholders and partners in Ghana who helped review, pre-test, and field-test the ECD Toolkit: George Nartey, Department of Health Promotion of Ghana Health Service; Pearl Peters, Ministry of Gender, Children and Social Protection; Larison Lydia, Akyikope CHPS at the Nsawam Adoagyir Municipality; Prosper Tang, regional CHPS coordinator of the Upper West Region; and Phoebe Balagumyetime, district director of Jirapa in the Upper West Region. We also want to thank the mother-to-mother support groups of Akyikope in the Nsawam Adoagyir Municipality, Koforidua Zongo in the New Juabeng Municipality, Sigri in the Jirapa District, and Domangyili in the Wa West District.

We wish to thank the following colleagues for their review and contributions in providing direction on the technical content of the toolkit: Juliana Pwamang from USAID Ghana; Alyssa Om’Iniabohs, Jessica Williams, Sara Dang, and Renee Perez from MCSP/Save the Children; and Karen Caldwell, Alishea Galvin, and Megan Lydon from MCSP/Jhpiego.

Illustrations were developed locally in Accra, Ghana, by Nathaniel Nelson of Noslen Images Limited.

The Ghana ECD Toolkit was adapted from Save the Children’s First Steps “Intera za Mbere” Package in Rwanda and Building Brains packages currently implemented in Nepal and Bhutan.

Introduction

The first 3 years of life are a period of tremendous growth in all areas of a baby’s development. The goal of the Ghana Early Childhood Development (ECD) Toolkit: Ages 0–3 is to enable parents or caregivers to promote brain development, health, and well-being for optimal child development. You have an important role in helping parents and families learn how to talk, play, and be responsive to their children from birth onward.

Early experiences and the environments in which children develop from birth to 3 years old significantly matter, as it is in these early experiences that vital brain connections are made through interactions with parents or caregivers. Children learn by exploring their environment. They practice new skills by playing and communicating with their caregivers. Relationships with a significant or consistent caregiver form the building blocks for healthy development. The quality and frequency of interactions with a caregiver determine the number of neural connections and, thus, brain development.

Besides food, a child needs stimulation to grow and develop. For example, when a caregiver responds to a baby’s needs and signals in a sensitive and accepting way, the caregiver is being responsive, and the baby feels secure and loved. Responsive parenting is critically important for a baby to build trust and feel confident to learn and explore. When a mother sings and talks to her baby, even before her baby can talk, her baby learns to communicate back. When a father encourages a child’s interest and curiosity, the child reaches out to explore and learn more. When a parent responds to a baby’s cries by calming and soothing, the baby learns to calm and comfort itself. All of these activities are known as early stimulation.

Play is the main component of early childhood stimulation. Children learn through play. Caregivers and children bond through play. From birth, play provides an opportunity for infants and caregivers to engage in early stimulation through smiling, cooing, tickling, talking, singing, communicating through touch, facial expressions, exploring new sounds and words, building together, making eye contact, looking, and being responsive to each other. Play is a chance for caregivers to provide undivided attention to the child and to see the world from the child’s perspective.

In sum, early communication, play, and responsive parenting are the main components of early stimulation.

This manual is a guide for community health workers who are a part of the Community-Based Health Planning Services (CHPS), providing coordinated nutrition and psychosocial stimulation services.

Each community health worker will have the following toolkit of materials:

- A parenting sessions guide book
- A flip chart with pictures, key messages, and discussion questions
- A set of picture cards, also called counseling cards
- A poster on early stimulation
- A folder for additional materials, such as checklists, tracking of experiences, etc.
- A kit of toys and books to use with the children during the group sessions (optional)

Please make sure to invite mother, fathers, mothers-in-law, and any other caregivers.

Background on Early Childhood Development

The sessions in the ECD 0–3 Toolkit will fall under four domains:

Topic 1: Play
1. Playing with Items around Your Home
2. Playing Games with Our Hands
3. Playing Games with Our Whole Bodies
4. Playing with Homemade Toys

Topic 2: Early Communication
1. Talk, Read, Talk
2. Word Builder
3. Storytelling

Topic 3: Responsive Care
1. Respond and Bond
2. Calming and Soothing
3. Routines

Topic 4: Positive Parenting
1. Positive Discipline
2. Secrets to Being Happy Parents
3. Protecting Our Children from Accidents

What is ECD?
- Early childhood care and development comprises all the essential supports a young child needs to survive and thrive in life. It spans the period from birth to 8 years of age across multiple domains consisting of physical, motor, cognitive, language, social, and emotional development. The focus of this ECD Toolkit is for children from birth to 3.
- Development includes being physically and mentally healthy.

Remember:
- Set up the play materials for the children.
- Sit the parents in a circle.
- Praise the parents when they are trying hard.
• Remind parents to praise their children.
• Always wash your hands with soap before demonstrating the games with children.
• Always wash the toys at the end of the session and put them back in the bag. Parents can volunteer to help. The toys always need to be kept clean.
• A child who eats well and is healthy will be active and curious. He/she will be ready to learn new things quickly. A child who is unwell or does not have suitable care will find it difficult to learn new things.
• Community health workers provide information on health, hygiene, and nutrition to help children grow and be physically healthy. This guidebook is part of the overall ECD toolkit that guides caregivers through activities on early stimulation. Early stimulation activities help children learn and be mentally healthy. These skills will help children develop skills for learning, language, and behavior. These skills will also help children be even healthier and grow well.
• Children learn from birth.
• A baby can see things, feel things, and respond to the voices and sounds he/she hears. A baby can tell us he/she is hungry or unhappy by the sounds and movements he/she makes.
• The brain of a baby is ready to absorb and learn. Early interactions are key to influencing how a baby’s brain circuits are wired.
• The more opportunities we give our babies to explore the world (by playing, reciprocal interactions, practicing new skills, seeing new things, and copying what others do), the more information is given to the brain and the more brain connections are formed. For example, we can speak a lot to our babies so they learn to recognize familiar voices and feel secure, give our children different toys to play with so they can learn to understand how things move (e.g., ball or a rattle), and give our children different things to feel so they can understand different textures (e.g., rough and smooth).
• A baby who has no opportunities to play and practice new skills will not experience healthy development.
• The brain of a baby is like a sponge that can absorb lots and lots of information and learn things quickly. (Take a sponge and soak it with water to demonstrate a brain that is cared for and nourished.)
• We must not let the brain be neglected or it will lose its ability to absorb new information. (Take an old, dried sponge to demonstrate this is like brain that has not been cared for.)
• Babies learn by playing and trying things out, and by observing and copying what others do. We need to ensure our babies have lots of opportunities to play, practice new skills, see, hear, touch new things, and copy what others do.

Session 1 | Playing with Items around Your Home

Objective: Parents learn how to play games with babies using easily available items from the home.

Key messages:

Infants:
- Play is the way that infants learn about their world. Play is children’s work!
- Playing with your baby expands learning while building bonds.
- By giving the baby objects with a variety of colors, sounds, and textures, you are helping the baby learn many new skills and concepts. They use their bodies and all senses to check out the world.
- Household items, like pans, pots, buckets, spoons, cups, and empty boxes, can be used to play a variety of games.

Toddlers:
- Toddlers like to do things over and over. Their brains get stronger when things are repeated, so sing the same song again, play the same game, read the same book, and tell that story again.
- Play is how toddlers learn to solve problems, so let them explore. Describe the play so that your child learns new words while playing with you.
- Two-year-olds are getting very social, so encourage play with other children, like cousins and neighbors. Children who can share and cooperate are more successful in school.

Materials needed:
- List of participants and their children’s names
- Mats for sitting

How to prepare:
- Review all of the session directions before the meeting.
- Review the flip chart to make sure you know how to explain them.
- Set up the sitting mats.
- Set up the toy area for children.

Getting Ready to Play Games

Say: In this meeting, we are going to learn some games corresponding to the age groups of our children; from 0 to 6 months, 6 to 12 months, 1 to 2 years, and 2 to 3 years.

- Show each picture and ask parents to describe what they see as well as other Reflection Questions on the flip chart. Use the questions on the back of flip chart.
- Also find out if they can relate the pictures to their own life and request a few examples from them.

Say: This picture represents the game “......” It is one of the games you can play with a child aged_____.

Say: Let us now learn how to play the game
Step 3

Picture-Pondering Activities (use flip chart/counseling card) and Game Playing

Follow the format from the flip chart and the guide in the manual. In this step, you will help parents learn about the topic through Reflection Questions, Suggested Actions, and Key Messages.

25 minutes

Teach all four games, explained below.
After teaching the parents the games, ask the parents to go into groups according to the age of the children to practice playing the games with the children. Walk around to see how the parents are playing.

Practice Session
Say: Always make sure to wash your hands with soap under running water before touching your baby.

- Facilitators outline steps for playing the games with each age group and observe them as they practice in the various groups.
- Facilitators move around each group and encourage open sharing of ideas.
- Give an opportunity for the different age group representative to play with their children in a plenary session one after the other.
Game 1

Birth to 6 months

As facilitators observe the practice session, they should promote parents playing with their children.

Give encouragement and notice out loud the good things you see.

Teach parents four games they can play with their children.

Say: The first game is called “Discover Feelings.” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent. Preparation: Collect a range of different objects that you can find all around the house.

Place your baby on his/her back on a blanket. Rub different objects very softly and slowly on her hand or foot. Describe each sensation: Do you feel this cold bowl? Do you feel this warm plate?

Say: Now practice this with your baby. Move around the groups supporting the caregivers.

Ask: What does your baby learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: Your baby explores different feelings and learns about different textures.

Explain: This game can be played with older children too.

* Parents of children with low vision could also rub the different objects on the babies’ fingers to begin developing pre-Braille skills (tactile perception).
Say: The second game is called “Knock It Down.” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Build a tower using the household items (e.g., bowls). Show your child how to knock it down. Build it back up again and allow them to try again.

Say: Now practice this with your baby. Move around the groups supporting the caregivers.

Ask: What does your baby learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: Your baby explores building and turn taking.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

* Parents of children with low vision could use items that will make a loud sound when they fall.
Say: The third game is called “Take It Out.” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent. Give child a container full of safe and clean items. Make sure there is nothing smaller than your palm or your child could choke on it.

Say: Babies will love to pull everything out. Older children will also start to put some things back again.

Say: Now practice this with your baby. Move around the groups supporting the caregivers.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: Your baby learns how to develop his or her movement and concepts of in and out.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

* Parents of children with physical disabilities will need to use big items that are easy to hold and may need to physically guide their children’s hands to take out the objects.
Game 4 2 to 3 years

Say: The fourth game is called “Pretend Cooking.” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent. Emphasize to parents that this game is about pretending to cook and not actual cooking. Tell parents that the aim of the game is not to teach children to cook but to play and learn new vocabulary words, and develop creativity, imagination, and curiosity.

Say: Give your child a variety of cooking items (e.g., spoon, bowl). No actual food is necessary.

Say: What shall we make? Oh, wow, it smells good! Can I try some?

Say: Now practice this with your baby. Move around the groups supporting the caregivers.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: They learn to use their imagination and will enjoy copying what they see adults doing.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

* Parents of children with visual impairments could have real food items (e.g., uncooked rice and lentils) and allow their child to explore with their fingers how they feel. It is important for parents to supervise their child for this activity.
In a Plenary Session:

Reporting Back

- Give time for each group to share at least three main relevant points with the large group.
- Ask: At what age can we start playing with our babies? Invite parents to answer.
- Say: You can start playing with your babies from the time of their birth. Your baby loves the sound of your voice and the feeling of your touch. It's fun, and you don't need any materials at all!
- Facilitators also share “SUGGESTED ACTIONS” as outlined in the flip chart during the plenary session.

Refer to the flip chart per game. Ask the group what they learned from the games and wait for parents to share their responses. You may go back to Reflection Questions if necessary.

- Using the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart as a guide for discussion, let parents talk about the key messages per group around playing as a tool for learning and how they may be able to put them into action back at home.
- Facilitators should then bridge the knowledge gaps by emphasizing the most important key points as outlined in the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart.

Conclusion

Ask: What four games did we learn today? Say: Remember that you should not give children sharp objects, like forks or knives, because they can get hurt, or objects smaller than your palm because they can choke on them.

Ask: What did we say were the importance of the games we played with our children? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The more you play and talk with your baby, the smarter your baby will become!

Ask: Who here will practice these games at home with their children? Participants who are committed will raise their hands. The facilitator acknowledges the parents who are committed to playing the games at home and assure them s/he will be excited to hear from them the outcome of playing the games with their children in the next meeting.

Say: Our next meeting will be [date and time]. I want you to choose two new volunteers who will remind all the families about the meeting so nobody forgets.

Say: Let’s sing our goodbye song all together now.

Say: Bye, everybody. Thank you for coming meeting class on ________ (confirm date of next meeting).
Session 2  Playing Games with Our Hands

Objective: Participants learn how to play games with their babies’ hands.

Key messages:

Infants:
- Playing with your baby is important for nurturing development. There are no rules for play, and you don’t need fancy toys.
- As your baby grows, he/she learns to use his/her body to make discoveries.
- You are your baby’s favorite toy. You can use your hands to play different games with your child.

Children 1 to 3 years old:
- Children can lead some of the play activities. It helps them build confidence.

Materials needed:
- List of participants and their children’s names
- Mats for sitting

How to prepare:
- Practice reading the session out loud.
- Set up the sitting mats.
- Check that you have the flip chart.

Step 3

Picture-Pondering Activities (use flip chart/counseling card) and Game Playing
Follow the format from the flip chart and the guide in the manual.

In this step, you will help parents learn about the topic.

25 minutes

Getting Ready to Play Games

Say: In this meeting, we are going to learn some games corresponding to the age groups of our children; from 0 to 6 months, 6 to 12 months, 1 to 2 years, and 2 to 3 years.

• Show each picture and ask parents to describe what they see as well as other Reflection Questions on the flip chart. Use the questions on the back of flip chart.
• Also find out if they can relate the pictures to their own life and request a few examples from them.

Say: This picture represents the game “……” It is one of the games you can play with a child aged_____.

Say: Let us now learn how to play the game.

Teach all four games, explained below.

After teaching the parents the games, ask the parents to go into groups according to the age of the children to practice playing the games with the children. Walk around to see how the parents are playing.

Practice Session

Say: Always make sure to wash your hands with soap under running water before touching your baby.

• Facilitators outline steps for playing the games with each age group and observe them as they practice in the various groups.
• Facilitators move around each group and encourage open sharing of ideas.
• Give an opportunity for the different age groups representative to play with their children in a plenary session one after the other.
Birth to 6 months

As facilitators observe the practice session, they should promote the activity of parents playing with their children. Give encouragement and notice out loud the good things you see.

Facilitators should ensure parents learn all four games they can play with their children.

Game 1

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Birth to 6 months</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

Say: The first game is called “Baby Dance.” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Sing a song and move the hands of the baby to the rhythm of the song in a dance. Cross the arms, move them up and down, etc. Then switch to the baby’s legs.

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the group and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The baby develops her muscles and enjoys playing with her caregiver.

Explain: This game can be played with older children too.

For children with impaired hearing, dance at the same time as you move your baby’s arms and legs.
Say: The second game is called “Thumb Song.” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent. Put your child on your knee facing you.

Sing a song with your child using your thumbs as people having a conversation (e.g., where is thumbkin). Make sure you are facing your child.

Where is thumbkin? Where is thumbkin?

Here I am. (Bring right hand to front, with thumb up.)

Here I am. (Bring left hand to front, with thumb up.)

How are you this morning?

Very well, I thank you. (Wiggle thumbs as if they’re “talking” to each other.)

Let’s go play. (Hide right hand behind back.)

Let’s go play. (Hide left hand behind back.)

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the group and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The baby learns how to use her thumb as a character.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

*For children with hearing impairments, make sure that they are able to see your lips while you sing.
Game 3  1 to 2 years

Say: The third game is called “Who’s in the box?” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Sing: Thumb-in-the-box, sit so still. (Make a fist and place your thumb inside your fingers. Pretend that the inside of your fist is a box where you hide and unhide the thumb.) Will you come out? (Child gently knocks on the fist.)

Yes, I will! (Pop your thumb out of your fist.)

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the group and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The baby learns about cause and effect.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

*For children with hearing loss, add actions to the words of the song to demonstrate the meaning of the body part before starting the game.
Say: The fourth game is called “Fish and the Frog.” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Show child your finger and say that that is the fish. Show your thumb on the other hand and say that is the frog. Tell your child that she/he has to catch the fish. Alternate moving the thumb and finger from a closed fist. The child holds the parent’s thumb and tries to catch the fish.

Chant “Catch me fish! Catch me fish!” while shaking your finger. When child tries to catch the fish, put up your thumb and say “Caught you!” Allow your child to catch the fish sometimes and congratulate for being fast.

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the group and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The baby develops her reflexes and begins to understand rules.

Explain: This game can be played with older children.
In a Plenary Session:

Reporting Back

- Give time for each group to share at least three main relevant points with the large group.
- Ask: At what age can we start playing with our babies? Invite parents to answer.
- Say: You can start playing with your babies from the time of their birth. Your baby loves the sound of your voice and the feeling of your touch. It's fun, and you don't need any materials at all!
- Facilitators also share “SUGGESTED ACTIONS” as outlined in the flip chart during the plenary session. Refer to the flip chart per game. Ask the group what they learned from the games and wait for parents to share their responses. You may go back to Reflection Questions if necessary.
- Using the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart as a guide for discussion, let parents talk about the key messages per group around playing as a tool for learning and how they may be able to put them into action back at home.
- Facilitators should then bridge the knowledge gaps by emphasizing the most important key points as outlined in the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart.

Conclusion

Ask: What four games did we learn today?

Ask: What did we say was the importance of the games we played with our children? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The more you play and talk with your baby, the smarter your baby will become!

Ask: Who here will practice these games at home with their children? Participants who are committed will raise their hands. The facilitator acknowledges the parents who are committed to playing the games at home and assure them s/he will be exited to hear from them the outcome of playing the games with their children in the next meeting.

Step 5

Reminder about next meeting and goodbye

5 minutes

Say: Our next meeting will be [date and time]. I want you again to choose two new volunteers who will remind all the families about the meeting so nobody forgets.

Say: Let's sing our goodbye song all together now.

Say: Bye, everybody. Thank you for coming today. Let's give our children a big hug and tell them that it is time to go home. We will see you in the next meeting on __________ (confirm date of next meeting).

Inform parents to bring materials needed for next session (e.g., rags, sandpaper, cloths of different textures, etc.).
Objective: Participants learn how to play games with their babies’ bodies.

Key messages:

Infants:
• Play is the way that infants learn about their world. Play is children’s work!
• Playing with baby expands learning while building bonds.
• Your face is your newborn’s favorite toy. They watch your face up close and are happy when you are near.

Toddlers:
• Pretending is one of the most powerful ways that a toddler figures out the world and solves problems.
• Playing pretend leads to creativity and better language skills, and builds cooperation.
• Toddlers begin naming, comparing, and sorting.

Materials needed:
• List of participants and their children’s names
• Mats for sitting

How to prepare:
• Review all of the session directions before the meeting.
• Review the flip chart to make sure you know how to explain them.
• Set up the sitting mats.
• Hang posters around meeting area or unfold brochure if possible.
• Set up the toy area for children.

Say: Let’s begin with a song. Teach parents to demonstrate the following parts of the body: “Head, shoulders, knees, and toes.” NOTE: Demonstrate slowly so that parents and children can follow. Parents with young babies can hold the children’s hands and do the actions. Parents with older children can do the actions with the children. Ask: Did the children enjoy this song? Say: Today we are going learn how to play games with our whole bodies! [Note to facilitator: The children can now go to their play area with your co-facilitator.] Ask: Who would like to share a song they sing to their babies? Ask: Anyone else? (To encourage many more responses from parents) Ask: What times of the day did you sing to or with your children? After all have had a chance to share, make positive points about the sharing and experiences.</td>

Picture-Pondering Activities
In this step, you will help parents learn about the topic through picture pondering.
Use flip chart/counseling card and game playing.
To wrap up, use Reflection Questions, Suggested Actions, and Key Messages.

25 minutes

Getting Ready to Play Games

Say: In this meeting, we are going to learn some games corresponding to the age groups of our children; from 0 to 6 months, 6 to 12 months, 1 to 2 years, and 2 to 3 years.

Game 1 Birth to 6 months

As facilitators observe the practice session, they should promote the activity of parents playing with their children. Give encouragement and notice out loud the good things you see.

Facilitators should ensure parents learn all four games they can play with their children.

---

Say: The first game is called “Where Is Your…?” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Say: Where is your nose? There it is! Point to the child's nose. Continue with other body parts.

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the group and support the parents.

Ask: What do your babies learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The baby learns how to interact with their caregiver and explores the different parts of their bodies.

For children with intellectual disabilities or hearing loss, it would be useful for the caregiver to also point to their own body parts. For instance, the father points to the child's nose and then points to his own nose.
Say: The second game is called “Bouncing Baby on the Road.”

Demonstrate with a doll or a parent. Put your child on your knee facing you.

Say: Do you remember when you and I decided to go on a big adventure? First we walked and walked and walked (move your legs as if you were walking, and the baby wiggles), and from time to time, there were bumps (gently bounce the baby).

Then, it got windy and windy and windy (baby sways from side to side). Then, it started to rain (make the gesture of rain falling and touching the baby), so we hid in a cave (wrap baby in your arms). Then, the sun came out (open your arms wide).

Say: Now practice this with your child.

Move around the group and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you?

Invite parents to answer.

Say: The baby learns to maintain eye contact and learns about different rhythms.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.
Say: The third game is called “1, 2, 3, Bump!” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.
Say: One, two, three, bump! Gently move your head to the child’s. Repeat.
Say: One, two, three, bump our hands. Put your hand out and tap the child's hand. Repeat. Continue with other body parts (e.g., feet, ears, etc.).
Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the group and support the parents.
Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.
Say: The baby learns body parts and how to focus.
Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

For children with visual impairments, talk about which body part you will bump and touch that body part before starting the game. For children with hearing loss, show 1, 2, and 3 on your fingers.
Say: The fourth game is called “If You Are Wearing...” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Say: If you are wearing socks, put your hands on your head. Continue with other items (e.g., hat, shoes, etc.). You can also change commands (e.g., jump, turn around, clap, etc.). You can also do this with colors. If you are wearing blue, turn around.

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the group and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: Your child learns how to describe features.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

* For children with hearing loss or intellectual disabilities, it may be useful for the parent to tap the child’s clothing items. For instance, the parent can touch or point to the child’s blue shirt.
Step 3
Recap and Reflect:
Report back after playing and recap the games played for the day.
Repeat the most important information covered today.
10 minutes

In a Plenary Session:

Session 4  Playing with Homemade Toys

Objective: Participants learn how to make and play with homemade toys.

Key messages:

Infants:

- Your face is your newborn’s favorite toy. He/she watches your face up close and is happy when you are near.
- Use simple things around the house as toys.
- Things with bright colors, different textures, and different sounds that are around the house make the best toys.

Toddlers:

- Young toddlers still need help with pretending.
- Playing pretend leads to creativity and better language skills, and builds cooperation.
- Helping you with simple chores is fun and builds confidence.

Materials needed:

- List of participants
- Newspaper
- Scraps of cloth
- String
- Empty water bottle
- Rice, beans, or colorful objects
- Scissors
- Tape

How to prepare:

- Practice reading the session out loud.
- Collect all of the materials needed (listed above).
- Set up the sitting mats.
Welcome the Participants
You can say: Welcome to session 4 of our program! It's wonderful to see everyone here. Each time we meet, we will learn how to raise happy, healthy, and smart children. Remember: You are your children's best teachers!

Next, you can sing your ECD 0–3 hello song chosen by the families.

Say: Let's begin by singing a song with actions. This song is called “Wheels on the Bus” (replace with any common mode of transport).

Demonstrate slowly so that parents and children can follow.

Ask: Did the children like this song? Invite some parents to answer.

Say: Today we are going to learn how to play games with homemade toys!

[Note to facilitator: The children can now go to their play area with your co-facilitator.]

Connecting

Ask: How has everyone been doing since our last meeting?

Ask: What was the topic of our last meeting?

Ask: What games did you practice after our last session?

Ask: What times of the day did you play the games with your children?

Ask: How did you adapt the games for your children?

Ask: Did you find anything difficult about the games? Invite some parents to answer. With the help of other parents if possible, try to help with their problem.

After all have had a chance to share, make positive points about the sharing and experiences.

Say: Today is all about playing games with homemade toys.

Try to get the parents excited about play. You can ask them, “What do you do for fun or during your leisure time?”

Point out that true play is freely chosen and done for the joy and pleasure of doing it.
Step 3

Picture-Pondering Activities (use flip chart/counseling card) and Game Playing

Follow the format from the flip chart and the guide in the manual.

In this step, you will help parents learn about the topic.

25 minutes

Getting Ready to Play Games

Say: In this meeting, we are going to learn some games corresponding to the age groups of our children; from 0 to 6 months, 6 to 12 months, 1 to 2 years, and 2 to 3 years.

- Show each picture and ask parents to describe what they see as well as other Reflection Questions on the flip chart. Use the questions on the back of flip chart.

- Also find out if they can relate the pictures to their own life and request few examples from them.

Say: This picture represents the game “…….” It is one of the games you can play with a child aged_____.

Say: Let us now learn how to play the game.

Teach all four games, explained below.

After teaching the parents the games, ask the parents to go into groups according to the age of the children to practice playing the games with the children. Walk around to see how the parents are playing.

Practice Session

Say: Always make sure to wash your hands with soap under running water before touching your baby.

- Facilitators outline steps for playing the games with each age group and observe them as they practice in the various groups.

- Facilitators move around each group and encourage open sharing of ideas.

- Give an opportunity for the different age groups representative to play with their children in a plenary session one after the other.
Say: The first game is called “Play Mobile.” Preparation: Make colorful toys out of cloth or common objects at home. Hang the toy above the baby’s play area or bed.

In a few days, hang up another toy beside the first. After a third thing has been added, take off the first object.

Hang objects in front of the baby’s face to draw its attention to their form, sound, color, etc. Enjoy a few minutes jiggling the toy so your baby will see it. Do you like the sound of this mobile? Do you like this color? Sing a song while jiggling the toy.

In a few days, hang up another toy beside the first. After a third thing has been added, take off the first object and repeat.

Say: Now practice this with your baby. Move around the groups supporting the caregivers.

Ask: What does your baby learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: Babies don’t need fancy toys. There are lots of everyday items that are fun for children to explore.

Explain: This game can be played with older children too.

* Parents of children with low vision can use objects that make a sound or objects with different textures that babies can touch (tactile perception).
The second game is called “Shake, Shake, Shake.” Fill a small plastic bottle with beans or rice (medicine bottle with child-proof cap or plastic water bottle). For babies 6 to 12 months old, let your baby shake it to make noise.

We are going to make a really simple musical instrument. You can make this with a variety of cheap or natural things.

Shake, shake, shake as you go get your baby.

What does your baby learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

When your baby is interested and having fun, he/she is learning.

This game can be played with older and younger children too.
Say: We are going to make a ball.
Show parents how to make balls out of newspaper, banana leaves, or other locally available material. You can make balls of different sizes and use tape to hold them together.
Show parents how to play different games with balls, such as rolling the ball back and forth with children, kicking and throwing the ball into a basket or to a target, or bowling with 1- and 2-year-olds.
Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.
Say: The child learns to coordinate his/her arm movements.
Explain: This game can be played with children of all ages.
Say: The fourth game is called “Puzzle Time!”

Say: We are going to make puzzles.

Show parents how to cut out image cards into two pieces.

Parents show the child how to match similar cards and how to put them together to form a picture.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The child learns to make simple puzzles and to look at pictures carefully.

Explain: This game can be played with children of all ages.

* Parents of children with visual impairments may need to choose very simple pictures with a lot of contrast (e.g., a black circle on white paper).
Step 4
Recap and Reflect
Recap the games played for the day.
Repeat the most important information covered today.
10 minutes

In a Plenary Session:

Reporting Back
- Give time for each group to share at least three main relevant points with the large group.
- Facilitators also share “SUGGESTED ACTIONS” as outlined in the flip chart during the plenary session.

Refer to the flip chart per game. Ask the group what they learned from the games and wait for parents to share their responses. If necessary, go back to Reflection Questions.
- Using the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart as a guide for discussion, let parents talk about the key messages per each group around playing as a tool for learning and how they may be able to put them into action at home.
- Facilitators should then bridge the knowledge gaps by emphasizing the most important key points as outlined in the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart.

Conclusion
Ask: What four games did we learn today? Say: Remember that you should not give children sharp objects, like forks or knives, because they can get hurt, or objects smaller than your palm because they can choke on them.

Ask: What did we say were the importance of the games we played with our children? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The more you play and talk with your baby, the smarter your baby will become!

Ask: Who here will practice these games at home with their children? Participants who are committed will raise their hands. The facilitator acknowledges the parents who are committed to playing the games at home and assures them s/he will be exited to hear from them the outcome of playing the games with their children in the next meeting.

Step 5
Reminder about next meeting and goodbye
5 minutes

Say: Our next meeting will be [date and time]. I want you again to choose two new volunteers who will remind all the families about the meeting so nobody forgets.

Say, Let’s sing our goodbye song all together now.

Say: Bye, everybody. Thank you for coming today. Let’s give our children a big hug and tell them that it is time to go home. We will see you in the next meeting on _______ (confirm date of next meeting).
Objective: Participants learn how talking and reading to a child promotes brain development.

Key messages:

Infants:
- Even little babies can communicate. They use crying, smiling, and cooing.
- Babies are learning words every day, so tell them the names of things around. The more words they hear, the smarter they become.
- Babies can learn from books too, so share picture books or stories with them every day. Talk about the pictures over and over.

Toddlers:
- Talking with your toddler is the best path to a smarter child.
- Two-year-olds are rapidly learning new words. It is very important to share stories and read picture books.
- When 2-year-olds say two-word phrases, extend the phrase to more words. This could mean taking your child’s words, like “brown cow,” and extending them to “Yes, the brown cow is eating grass.”

Materials needed:
- List of participants and their children’s names
- Homemade picture puzzle cut from newspaper
- Pictures from newspapers/laminated pictures
- Picture books (if available)
- Mats for sitting

How to prepare:
- Review all of the session directions before the meeting.
- Review the posters and home cards to make sure you know how to explain them.
- Collect all of the materials needed (listed above).
- Choose a simple picture book to share that has very few or no words.
- Set up the sitting mats.

Getting Ready to Play Games

Say: In this meeting, we are going to learn some games corresponding to the age groups of our children; from 0 to 6 months, 6 to 12 months, 1 to 2 years, and 2 to 3 years.

• Show each picture and ask parents to describe what they see as well as other Reflection Questions on the flip chart. Use the questions on the back of flip chart.
• Also find out if they can relate the pictures to their own life and request few examples from them.

Say: This picture represents the game “……” It is one of the games you can play with a child aged_____.

Say: Let us now learn how to play the game.

Teach all four games, explained below.

After teaching the parents the games, ask the parents to go into groups according to the age of the children to practice playing the games with the children. Walk around to see how the parents are playing.

Practice Session

Say: Always make sure to wash your hands with soap under running water before touching your baby.

• Facilitators outline steps for playing the games with each age group and observe them as they practice in the various groups.
• Facilitators move around each group and encourage open sharing of ideas.

Give an opportunity for the different age groups represented to play with their children in a plenary session one after the other.
Game 1 Birth to 6 months

As facilitators observe the practice session, they should promote the activity of parents playing with their children. Give encouragement and notice out loud the good things you see.

Facilitators should ensure parents learn all four games they can play with their children.

Say: This game is called “Picture Description.”

Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Describe the picture to the baby. You can make sounds the animal makes.

Say: This is a big cow. Look how big it is! Cows make milk for us and they go “moo.”

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the groups and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The child feels loved and learns to look at books and images.

Explain: This game can be played with older children too.
Game 2 6 to 12 months

Say: This game is called “My Child’s Story.”

Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Make up a story about a picture with your child. Make sure to use the child’s name.

Say: One day, mommy, daddy, and [child’s name] were going for a walk, and we came across a big tree! It was so hot that we decided to sit down underneath, right there. Then, we saw a… Continue with the story, using the different images.

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the groups and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The child hears a variety of words and stories, and learns to use his/her imagination.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

Parents of children with hearing loss, low vision, or intellectual disabilities may need to spend extra time on each page so that the children have enough time to process. It may also help to use actions to support what they are saying (fan face pretending to be hot).
Say: This game is called “Where Is...?”
Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Ask the child to point to different things on the page.

Say: (For example) Where is the girl? Yes, that’s the girl! Where is the girl’s nose?

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the groups and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you?

Say: The child learns new vocabulary and learns to listen to instructions.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

* Parents of children with intellectual disabilities may need to ask yes/no questions. For instance, the parent can point to the sun and ask, “Is this the sun? Yes or no?”
Game 4  2 to 3 years

Say: This game is called “Touch.” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

The caregiver and child should be looking at a book. The caregiver should have a book with different colors illustrated (e.g., color blue, and the child touches something blue on the paper).

Say: (For example) What is the color of the sun? What shape is it? Can you touch the picture of the sun? Describe the colors and shapes of things in the pictures for me to find.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you?

Say: The child learns new vocabulary and how to describe characteristics.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

* Parents of children with intellectual disabilities may need to ask yes/no questions. For instance, the parent can point to the sun and ask, “Is this the sun? Yes or no?”
Step 4
Recap and Reflect:
Recap the games played for the day.
Repeat the most important information covered today.
10 minutes

Step 5
Reminder about next meeting and goodbye
5 minutes

In a Plenary Session:

Reporting Back
- Give time for each group to share at least three main relevant points with the large group.
- Ask: At what age can we start playing with our babies? Invite parents to answer.
- Say: You can start playing with your babies from the time of their birth. Your baby loves the sound of your voice and the feeling of your touch. It's fun, and you don’t need any materials at all!
- Facilitators also share “SUGGESTED ACTIONS” as outlined in the flip chart during the plenary session.

Refer to the flip chart per game. Ask the group what they learned from the games and wait for parents to share their responses. You may go back to Reflection Questions if necessary.
- Using the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart as a guide for discussion, let parents talk about the key messages per each group around playing as a tool for learning and how they may be able to put them into action at home.
- Facilitators should then bridge the knowledge gaps by emphasizing the most important key points as outlined in the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart.

Conclusion
Ask: What four games did we learn today? Remember that you should not give children sharp objects, like forks or knives, because they can get hurt or objects smaller than your palm because they can choke on them.
Ask: What did we say were the importance of the games we played with our children? Invite parents to answer.
Say: The more you play and talk with your baby, the smarter your baby will become!
Ask: Who here will practice these games at home with their children? Participants who are committed will raise their hands. The facilitator acknowledges the parents that are committed to playing the games at home and assure them s/he will be exited to hear from them the outcome of playing the games with their children in the next meeting.

Say: Our next meeting will be [date and time]. I want you again to choose two new volunteers who will remind all the families about the meeting so nobody forgets.
Say: Let's sing our goodbye song all together now.
Say: Bye, everybody. Thank you for coming today. Let's give our children a big hug and tell them that it is time to go home. We will see you in the next meeting on __________ [confirm date of next meeting].
Session 6  Word Builder

Objective: Participants learn how to help early language skills grow and understand that babies, infants, and young children communicate, even without words.

Key messages:

Infants:
- Language and communication begin at birth. There are several stages to language development:
  - 0 to 3 months: Babies’ sounds, like cries and gestures, are automatic in response to a feeling or need.
  - 3 to 5 months: Babies begin to imitate the sounds they hear. This is called cooing (“ooo” and “aaah” sounds).
  - 5 to 9 months: Babies will start to babble, stringing lots of these little sounds together (“ba ba ba”).
  - 9 to 12 months: Babies start to say their first “words,” such as ma, pa, ba, or da.
- Early on, babies try to have “conversations” with the people they love. They start by back-and-forth smiling and cooing. Later, they “talk” by using movements (e.g., kicking happily to show excitement), gestures (e.g., pointing), and sounds (e.g., babbling and later words).

Young children:
- Young children are learning so many words every day. The more words they hear, the more they learn.
- At 12 months, toddlers may say one to three words.
- Around 18 months, toddlers may grow to say 20 to 50 words.
- By age 2, toddlers can put two words together to make simple sentences.

Materials needed:
- List of participants and their children’s names
- Flip charts on early language and communication (4)
- A variety of household objects, vegetables, and fruits
- Picture book
- Images cut out from newspapers or magazines
- Mats for sitting

How to prepare:
- Practice reading the session out loud.
- Collect all of the materials needed (listed above).
- Set up the sitting mats.
- Choose a simple picture book to share that has very few or no words.
Session 6

Welcome

Greetings and Songs

Step 1

Welcome the Participants

You can say: Welcome to session 6 of our program! It's wonderful to see everyone here. Each time we meet, we will learn how to raise happy, healthy, and smart children. Remember: You are your children's best teachers!

Next you can sing your ECD 0–3 hello song chosen by the families.

Say: Let's begin by singing a song with actions. This song is called “To Market, to Market to Buy a ___, Home Again, Home Again, Market Is Done.” (Participants will fill the blank with anything they can buy at the market.)

Demonstrate slowly so that parents and children can follow.

Ask: Did the children like this song? Invite some parents to answer.

Say: Today we are going learn how to build your child's vocabulary.

[Note to facilitator: The children can now go to their play area with your co-facilitator.]

* Remember that singing songs is fun way of playing with baby, and it builds early literacy at the same time. Also, the rhythm and rhyme of singing help the baby or young child learn about sounds.

Step 2

Connecting

Connect with families by asking how everything went since the last meeting.

How has everyone been doing since our last meeting?

What was the topic of our last meeting?

What books did you read with your children? What stories did you tell your children?

What times of the day did you read with your children?

How did you adapt the games for your children?

Did you find anything difficult about the games? Invite some parents to answer. With the help of other parents if possible, try to help with their problem.
Step 3

Picture-Pondering

Activities (use flip chart/counseling card) and Game Playing

Follow the format from the flip chart and the guide in the manual.

In this step, you will help parents learn about the topic.

Facilitators should ensure parents learn all four games they can play with their children.

Say: The first game is called “What Is in the Bag?” Preparation: Fill a bag or box with household items, fruits, or vegetables.

Sing: What is in the box, what is in the box...Knock knock knock...[pull out an object and name it] is in the box!

Say: Now practice this with your baby. Move around the groups supporting the caregiver

Ask: What does your baby learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: Babies learn to associate a word with an object and build their vocabulary.

Explain: This game can be played with older children too.

* Parents of children with low vision can use objects that make a sound or objects with different textures that babies can touch (tactile perception).
Say: The second game is called “See, Touch, and Hear.”

Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Take the baby for a walk. Talk about the things you see.

Say: See these beautiful red flowers! They smell so good. Can you feel the breeze? It is so cool. Can you hear the birds? They sing so well. Look at that cow! The cow says “moo.”

Continue to describe the sensations outside and allow children to experience different sensations.

Say: Now practice this with your baby. Move around the groups supporting the caregivers.

Ask: What do your babies learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: Your baby explores nature and learns new words.

Explain: This game can be played with older children too.
Say: The third game we are going to play is called “Treasure Box.”

Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Say: Give your child a container full of safe and clean items. Make sure there is nothing small that your child could choke on. Your child will love to pull everything out and maybe even put some back again.

Each time your baby pulls out an object, label it and say the name of the object out loud. Each time your baby puts an object back, say the name of the object out loud.

Say: Now try this with your baby in small groups with two or three other caregivers. Move around the groups supporting the caregivers.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: Your baby learns how to develop their movement skills and learns new words.

Do this activity with new objects and introduce new words.
Game 4  2 to 3 years

Say: The fourth game is called “Can You See What I See?” Demonstrate with a doll or a parent.

Play a game where the child has to find what you are describing. Do not tell the child the name of the object—just describe it.

Say: (For example) I see something round and red and shiny, and it’s on the table, and… Continue describing the object until the child finds the object.

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the groups and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you?

Say: The child learns new vocabulary and how to describe characteristics.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

* Parents of children with intellectual disabilities may need to ask yes/no questions. For instance, the parent can point to the sun and ask, “Is this the sun? Yes, or no?”

Objective:
Participants learn how to promote literacy through storytelling.

Key messages:

Infants:
- Talk and sing to promote very early literacy.
- Talking by naming things and telling stories builds your child’s oral language.
- Singing helps baby love the rhythm of language and will help with reading comprehension later.

Toddlers:
- Storytelling builds awareness of the sounds in language.
- To help your child learn new words and build literacy skills, label or name the things she/he sees every day.
- Encourage pretend play and making up stories to promote early literacy.

Materials needed:
- List of participants and their children’s names
- Newspaper
- Mats for sitting

How to prepare:
- Practice reading the session out loud.
- Collect all of the materials needed (listed above).
- Set up the sitting mats.
Welcome the Participants:
You can say: Welcome to session 7 of our program! It’s wonderful to see everyone here. Each time we meet, we will learn how to raise happy, healthy, and smart children. Remember: You are your children’s best teachers!
Next, you can sing your ECD 0–3 hello song chosen by the families.

Say: Let’s begin by singing a song with actions. This song is called “Five Little Ducks.” Participants will count down from five until all the little ducks came back.

Sing: Five little ducks
Went out one day
Over the hill and far away.
Mother duck said,
“Quack, quack, quack, quack.”

But only four little ducks came back.

Demonstrate slowly so that parents and children can follow.

Ask: Did the children like this song? Invite some parents to answer.
Say: Today, we are going learn how to build your children’s vocabulary.

Game 1 Birth to 6 months

As facilitators observe the practice session, they should promote the activity of parents playing with their children. Give encouragement and notice out loud the good things you see.

Facilitators should ensure parents learn all four games they can play with their children.

Say: The first game is called “Weather Massage.”

Say: Once upon a time, there was a big yellow sun... (with one hand on the shoulder, take the other hand and make a circle clockwise on the back)

...that warmed the whole world ("rays" to the sides with fingers).

But look, clouds appear and cover the sun (make small circles with fingertips).

Then the wind comes and blows harder...and harder...and harder... (stroke with hand from side to side and gently increase pressure).

Then came lightning... (make lightening with fingertips)

...and thunder (clap gently on the back with hands).

Then came the rain (begin at shoulders and stroke down with fingertips).

And it rained harder...and harder... (same as above except faster and faster).

Finally, a fog appeared and everything became still (lay hands still on back)

Until the sun came out and warmed up the earth once again (slowly take away hands).

* Parents should be gentle when doing the story massage.
Say: The second game is called “Going on a Trip.”

In this game, the parent tells a story about going on a trip by bus or car. The parent puts the infant on his/her shoulders and pretends to be driving.

Say: (For example) Once upon a time, I went on a trip in a blue bus. The bus went “vroom, vroom” up and down the hill. The bus had very old tires, and they made a screeching sound, “craaaaa, craaaaa,” whenever the bus would stop. It went on up and down, up and down the hill saying, “vroom, vroom.” In the valley, Mr. Abdul, the villager barber, hopped on the bus...
Make up a story about a picture with your child. Make sure to use the child's name.

Say: One day, mommy, daddy, and [child's name] were going for a walk, and we came across a big, fat rabbit! The rabbit was eating a carrot. Then, we saw a... Continue with the story, using the different images.

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the groups and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The child hears a variety of words and stories, and learns to use his/her imagination.

Explain: This game can be played with older and younger children too.

* Parents of children with hearing loss, low vision, or intellectual disabilities may need to spend extra time on each page so that the children have enough time to process. It may also help to use actions to support what they are saying (e.g., fan face pretending to be hot).
Say: This game is called “Make Up Your Own Story.” Use a stuffed animal or other toy to inspire or start a story.

Say: Make up your own story! Use a toy, picture, or an object around the house to inspire the story. For example, say, today, we are going to tell a story about a rabbit using this stuffed rabbit toy. Let’s imagine that one day, Mr. Rabbit was hungry. I wonder what he did to solve his problem. He went to his neighbor’s carrot garden and started eating the carrots. Suddenly...

Say: Now practice this with your child. Move around the groups and support the parents.

Ask: What do your children learn from playing this game with you? Invite parents to answer.

Say: The child hears a variety of words and stories, and learns to use his/her imagination.

- Say: Bye, everybody. Thank you for coming today. Let’s give our children a big hug and tell them that it is time to go home.

We will see you in the next meeting on ________ (confirm date of next meeting).
Session 8 | Respond and Bond

Objective: Teach parents simple ways to bond with their children to promote brain development.

Key messages:

Infants:

- Your baby’s brain grows every time you touch or hold and respond. You can’t spoil babies by holding them because they need to be comforted.
- Trust begins in the first year. Babies must trust to learn and explore.
- Bonding forms healthy foundations for life.

Toddlers:

- Toddlers need guidance on what is safe as they explore.
- You must tell them what to expect.
- They want to be independent and try things by themselves, so let them help out with dressing and small chores.

Materials needed:

- List of participants and their children’s names
- Picture books
- Posters on respond and bond
- Several baskets or boxes and pitchers with things (balls, socks, sticks, stones)
- Mats for sitting

How to prepare:

- Set up the sitting mats.
- Fill pitcher and box with assorted things.
- Hang the posters around the area or unfold brochure.

Give an opportunity for the different age groups representative to play with their children in a plenary session one after the other.
Children learn to trust in the first few years of life. When you provide responsive care with a safe place to explore, they learn that they can trust you to meet their needs.

This trust starts with a loving gaze at you. As infants, they look up at you and wait for feedback. You give that in so many ways. Let’s try an activity with those who have infants. Today, we’re going to play “Bonding with Baby.”

Watch your baby for a moment. See his or her eyes gazing up at you. Watch as the baby follows your moves and seeks out your face.

When he or she makes sounds, make them back. This makes the baby feel important and encourages more language and communication. Try it now.

Talk with your baby by noticing out loud what he or she is doing or feeling. Say things like, “I know you are hungry, and your crying is letting me know.”

When you see the baby reach for something, notice out loud: “Oh, you want my hair, don’t you?”

Think of three ways you can work on bonding more with your baby.

Play “Copy Cat.” Show parents how to be the baby’s “mirror.”

For example, when the baby yawns, open your mouth in response. If the baby gazes at you, widen your eyes in response. When the baby smiles or coos, smile and coo back.
Say: Bond with your infant by talking, singing, and dancing. Do it as a family if possible. Infants need to bond with both parents.

Say: We're going to play “Sing and Dance Along.”

Say: Sing your baby's favorite song. Dance, clap, and drum using safe household or other play items.

Say: You can include this activity in your daily routines; for example, after bathing baby or before putting baby to sleep, while relaxing with baby, etc.
Say: Share books. What books, words, and pages does your baby like most? Reading together builds language skills as your baby learns new words and their meanings. It also builds strong bonds.

Reading to a Young Child:

Say: Young children also need simple talk around the pictures. Make the reading fun and interactive. Ask the child to touch the picture as you name the object. They delight in books. Use simple and few words. If too many words are on the page, just talk about the pictures and avoid reading long passages. When young children lose interest, they usually try to close the book and walk away. Follow their lead and say, “I guess you are finished with this one, so we will read later.”
Say: We’re going to play “Fill’er Up!”

Say: Have the children help fill a plastic pitcher or other container with balls or soft socks or other things. (You can make balls with paper and plant materials.)

Then, let them dump the pitcher out into a basket or box. Watch them fill and dump, fill, and dump to their heart’s content.

Change this up by placing a box or basket on the floor and give the children several balls or other items. Each time they put a ball or other item in the basket, clap your hands.

Watch how your child responds when you clap. Does she look interested and look toward you for the clapping? This shows a tight bond by looking for approval.

Activities like this help children develop hand-eye and fine muscle skills as they bond more with you.

Session 9  Calming and Soothing

Objective: Teach parents simple ways to keep their baby calm through comforting and soothing.

Key messages:

Infants:

- Babies are born needing caregivers to calm and soothe them.
- Babies that are soothed and comforted learn to manage their own feelings.
- Some babies are fussier than others and may need extra help to calm down.

Toddlers:

- Toddlers cry often because they get frustrated over little things.
- Toddlers are learning to soothe themselves at nap and bedtime.
- Simple rules are good for 2-year-olds if parents help them consistently follow them.
- Two-year-olds need to know what you expect of them.

Materials needed:

- List of participants and their children’s names
- Flip charts on calming and soothing (4)
- Chart paper and markers
- Mats for sitting
- A doll and blanket
- One large green circle and one large red circle made with paper

How to prepare:

- Think about how you keep yourself calm. If you are a parent, reflect on ways you calmed and soothed your own baby.
- Review all of the session directions before the meeting.
- Review the flip charts and counseling cards to make sure you know how to explain them.
- Collect all of the materials needed (listed above).
- Set up the sitting mats if applicable.
- Check that you have the flip chart opened to the right session.

Say: Singing is a way to keep everyone calm and happy. Alternately, you can sing “Row, Row, Row Your Boat.” Say: Let’s sing a lullaby again. Who would like to share one that their baby likes? Sing the lullaby to comfort and soothe a baby when he or she is tired. It comes naturally, but it means so much and leads to a lifelong bond.</td>

Poster-pondering Activities (use flip chart/counseling card) and Game Playing
Follow the format from the flip chart and the guide in the manual.
In this step, you will help parents learn about the topic.
25 minutes

Getting Ready to Play Games

Say: In this meeting, we are going to learn some games corresponding to the age groups of our children; from 0 to 6 months, 6 to 12 months, 1 to 2 years, and 2 to 3 years.

- Show each picture and ask parents to describe what they see as well as other Reflection Questions on the flip chart. Use the questions on the back of flip chart.
- Also find out if they can relate the pictures to their own life and request few examples from them.

Say: This picture represents the game “……” It is one of the games you can play with a child aged_____.

Say: Let us now learn how to play the game.

Teach all four games, explained below.

After teaching the parents the games, ask the parents to go into groups according to the age of the children to practice playing the games with the children. Walk around to see how the parents are playing.

Practice Session

Say: Always make sure to wash your hands with soap under running water before touching your baby.

- Facilitators outline steps for playing the games with each age group and observe them as they practice in the various groups.
- Facilitators move around each group and encourage open sharing of ideas.

Give an opportunity for the different age groups representative to play with their children in a plenary session one after the other.

Say: Calming and soothing builds self-regulation for infants. They also build confidence, self-awareness, and an understanding of feelings. All of these things will help baby learn to self-soothe and understand him or herself better.

Say: Think about what happens when your baby or toddler is crying and upset. What if you know your baby is not hungry, wet, or tired? How would you go about calming and soothing your baby? Our next activity will get us thinking about some of those ways, so please share those as we put them on our charts or discussions.
Facilitators should ensure parents learn all four games they can play with their children.

Activity: How Do You Calm and Soothe?

Say: Every child is soothed differently, so try to think about what soothes your toddler best. Sometimes they need you to hold them, and others they may just need a break and be away from people to calm down. It takes time, so keep trying to figure out your toddler wants and what works.

Over this week, try some things and see what works. Think about these things as you deal with calming:

1. My child is calmer when I do this: _________________________________

2. My child loses control at these times of the day: ____________________________

3. When he is out of control and needs my help, I try this: ____________________________

4. Some new ways that work are to: ________________________________

5. I stay calm by taking a break and doing this: ________________________________

Recognizing what works to calm your toddler will help you teach the valuable skill of self-regulation. Make a chart with the information developed above. Keep this chart on hand for future episodes.
Say: We’re going to play “Investigator.”

Say: Find out what your baby needs. In this game, you play investigator to find out what the baby needs and why he is crying or uncomfortable.

- Check that baby has not soiled his clothes.
- Check that baby is not too hot or too cold.
- Check that baby has been fed.
- Check that the clothes are not too tight, etc.
Game 2 6 to 12 months

Say: We're going to play “Tummy Massage.”

Say: In this game, put your child on your lap facing you and you give a gentle tummy massage. Make sure you don't press the baby's stomach too hard. Talk or sing to baby while you are giving the massage. You can also turn the baby on his or her stomach, put them on your knee, and give a gentle massage on the back and bum. This can help baby to calm down, especially if upset is due to stomach upset.
Say: We're going to play “Label Emotions.”

Say: In this game, talk about the emotions your child is experiencing and talk about why the child is feeling like that. For example, you can say “I can see that you are very sad. Your doll got torn. It is OK to cry when you are sad. But better still, instead of crying, you can ask for help. Don’t worry, I will help you repair it. Now give me a smile! That's right! See, your doll is now fixed, and you are happy.”
Say: We're going to play “Stop and Go.”

Say: This game helps a child learn how to self-regulate, self-soothe, and develop patience and the ability to wait. When a child has patience and self-regulation, he/she is able to stay calm.

1. Use something round and red for “stop” and something round and green for “go.” You could use fruits or vegetables; you could use a tomato for stop and an avocado for go. Tell your child and show how if you hold up the green thing, the child can go or move around. If you hold up the red thing, the child must stop. Try it several times and see how your child can control his or her movement.

2. You and the child can play “stop and go” as you take turns holding up the color—when the green shows, the other person can walk or run forward until the red is held up. Then they have to stop. This helps children develop self-control as they learn to stop on red and wait for green.

3. This teaches a valuable skill for school and life called self-regulation. School requires children to stop and listen, so the “stop and go” game can get your child ready for school.

Make a chart with some of the answers that parents share.
Step 4
Recap and Reflect

Objective: Teach parents simple ways to keep their baby calm through establishing routines.

Key messages:

Infants:
- Routines help babies feel safe and secure.
- Having same order of routines helps babies brains grow stronger.
- Babies learn to trust that a caring person will provide what they need.

Toddlers:
- When routines are predictable, they make your toddler's brain grow with strong pathways.
- Routines offer a way for toddlers to help and start building some independence.
- When needs are met routinely, 2-year-olds are less likely to have a crying fit.

Materials needed:
- List of participants and their children’s names
- Posters/brochures on routines (3)
- A variety of toys for infant and toddler
- Chart or large butcher paper and markers
- Mats for sitting

How to prepare:
- Review all of the session directions before the meeting.
- Review the posters/brochures and cards to make sure you know how to explain them.
- Collect all of the materials needed (listed above).
- Set up the sitting mats.
- Hang or place the posters/brochures around the area.
- Set up the toy area for children.

5 minutes
Getting Ready to Play Games

Say: Predictable routines build trust for babies. If they know what is next, then they can cope better. Then they will be free to explore and learn.

Say: Think about routines that happen with babies and toddlers. Let’s discuss them.

Ask them to share the ones that provide good opportunities for talking, learning, and bonding. Help the caregivers think of routines that happen to their little ones. Ask them to come up and make a list if resources are available for writing out the list. They can draw if writing or reading is an issue. Make sure the list includes some of these examples (you can add to the list if they are not mentioned by the families): getting dressed, eating breakfast, going to and from the fields/farm, eating lunch, naptime, playing, eating dinner, bathing, and going to bed.

As they mark the ones that are done individually, you can lead a conversation about what kinds of talk and play can happen during routines. For example, at bedtime, it is good to have quiet routines, like reading or telling stories on the cozy bed mat.

Say: In this meeting, we are going to learn some games about building routines corresponding to the age groups of our children; from 0 to 6 months, 6 to 12 months, 1 to 2 years, and 2 to 3 years.

- Show each picture and ask parents to describe what they see as well as other Reflection Questions on the flip chart. Use the questions on the back of the flip chart.

Games and Playing:
As facilitators observe the practice session, they should promote the activity of parents playing with their children.

Give encouragement and notice out loud the good things you see.

Facilitators should ensure parents learn all 4 games they can play with their children.

15 minutes

Birth to 6 months

Say: We’re going to learn how to play peekaboo.

In this game, alternate between hiding and reappearing behind your hands or a scarf. Play this as long as baby is still interested and excited about it. As baby grows, you can also play by hiding behind a door, wall, chair, or other large item. Make some sounds or familiar sounds when you come out of hiding. You can also say “peekaboo.” You can also simply imitate the baby’s noises. You can play this game when resting or in between meals for baby.

Have the parent hide his or her face behind a cloth, scarf, or handkerchief and then pop out to say “peekaboo!” Watch to see how the baby responds. If this game seems to startle him or her, then see if a less intense way to play “peekaboo” may work better.

Explain that the peekaboo game is a lot like a daily routine because by playing it, babies learn what is going to happen next.

Ask if parents have any other games like this that their child likes.

Tell parents that this game can be nice to play during one of the routines. It is great for helping baby learn about cause and effect. This leads to good problem-solving later.
Say: We’re going to play “Stretch, Baby, Stretch.”

Say: In this game, help your baby to stretch by gently stretching their legs and arms before or after bathing.

You can put baby on your lap and gently stretch them while talking about the parts of the body.

For example, you can say, “You have such lovely legs. Two legs. Let’s stretch the first leg. Now let’s stretch another leg. Great! Now let’s tickle your little toes. You like that! I also like tickling your five toes like this!”
Say: We’re going to learn “Bath and Count.”
Say: In this game, count and name parts of the body while bathing the child.
You can say, “Hey, baby, lets bathe your two ears. One ear. Two ears! Now let’s bath your feet! Wow! One foot has five toes. Let’s count them: one, two, three, four, five! Five toes on one foot! Let’s bathe other foot too!”
You can also count and name other items, like soap, towel, clothes, etc.
Say: We're going to learn about playing outside.

Say: In this game, take your child outside to play his or her favorite game. You can make it in such a way that there is a certain time of the day when you play outside; for example, after the afternoon nap or before evening bath, etc.
In a Plenary Session:

Reporting Back

- Give time for each group to share at least three main relevant points with the large group.

Session 11

Positive Discipline

Welcome the Participants

Say: Welcome to session 11 of our program! It’s wonderful to see everyone here. Each time we meet, we will learn how to raise happy, healthy, and smart children. Remember: You are your children’s best teachers!

Next, you can sing your ECD 0–3 hello song chosen by the families.

Say: The more we get together, together, together.

The more we get together, the happier we’ll be!

For your friends are my friends and my friends are your friends.

The more we get together, the happier we’ll be!

Ask: Did your babies like this song? Invite some parents to answer.

Say: Today we are going learn positive discipline as a way of guiding and teaching our little ones.

[Note to facilitator: The children can now go to their play area with your co-facilitator.]

Ask: How has everyone been doing since our last meeting?

Ask: What was the topic of our last meeting? How did you keep to a routine?

Ask: Did routines help your children?

Ask: How did you adapt the games for your children?

Ask: Did you find anything difficult about the games? Invite some parents to answer. With the help of other parents if possible, try to help with their problem.

Game 1

Birth to 6 months

As facilitators observe the practice session, they should promote the activity of parents playing with their children. Give encouragement and notice out loud the good things you see.

Facilitators should ensure parents learn all four games they can play with their children.

Say: We're going to play “Rock the Baby.”

Say: In this game, hold the baby and gently rock from side to side while singing and dancing. This simple game can help build strong bonds and trust between you and baby. Trust is an important foundation of positive discipline and guidance. You can also use this game to soothe and calm the baby.
Game 2  6 to 12 months

Say: We’re going to play “Tell the Baby What to Do.”

Say: In this game, tell your baby what you want them to do and also gently tell them what you don’t want them to do. Praise the baby when he/she does something good. For example, say “Baby crawl and pick the ball for mama. Hold unto that table and walk gently toward me! Good job! Don’t it eat that, baby. It is dangerous. Eat this carrot. It is very delicious.”

Say: Positive discipline begins with guidance.

Say: Think about these strategies. How will you take them home and put them into action? Can someone share one new way to deal with behaviors?

Write down the ideas that are shared. Then, ask parents to come up and put a mark by the ones that are done one-on-one and ones that are good for talking, learning, and bonding.
Say: We're going to play “Feeling Faces.”

Say: In this game, observe and imitate the feelings shown on your child’s face. Note them out loud and talk about them with the child. Talk about what is happening and how the child is feeling. For example, if the child is happy, make a happy face and say, “You are very happy. Right? That is good. Is it because you got a new toy?” If the child is sad, make a sad face and say, “You look very sad. Sorry, my dear. Is it because you fell down and hurt your knee? Let me take a look. I put my magic touch on it and it is now better. I can see a smile coming out now. Great!”

Let parents and children play for a little while. Go around and note the good things you see out loud. If you see emotions, label those. Ask: How did that work for them? What emotions did they see and notice?
Say: We’re going to play “Role-Play: Lights, Camera, Action.”

Say: In this game, follow four steps to help a child turn negative behavior into a positive behavior by role-playing. Use the following actions for each step:

Have all the parents chant the steps as they do these motions:

- See it (cup hands over eyes to look).
- Feel it (make a mad face and point to face).
- Fix it (act like a screwdriver is screwing in a fixture).
- Win it (thumbs up and big smile).

Say: When your young child does something wrong, like hit or throw food, follow these steps each time:

- Cap your hands around your face for see it and say, “I see you hit your brother.”
- Feel it: “I know you are mad because he took your toy.”
Fix it: “You can’t hit because it hurts. Tell him you want a toy.”
Win it: “Next time, use your words and you might get your toy back.”
Next, ask them to get into pairs and think of a behavior problem. One will be the parent and the other will be the toddler. Have them act out the four steps. Then, they will switch their roles. Walk around and make sure they understand.

Step 4
Recap and Reflect
Recap the games played for the day.
Repeat the most important information covered today.
10 minutes

In a Plenary Session:

Reporting Back
- Give time for each group to share at least three main relevant points with the large group.
- Facilitators also share SUGGESTED ACTIONS as outlined in the flip chart during the plenary session.

Refer to the flip chart per game. Ask the group what they learned from the games and wait for parents to share their responses. You may go back to Reflection Questions if necessary.
- Using the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart as a guide for discussion, let parents talk about the key messages per each group around playing as a tool for learning and how they may be able to put them into action at home.
- Facilitators should then bridge the knowledge gaps by emphasizing the most important key points as outlined in the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart.

Conclusion
Say: It is almost time to end this session. I hope everyone learned some new tips for helping behaviors go the right way. I look forward to your feedback on positive discipline next week.

Say: Please be sure your spouse learns your same techniques. Babies and toddlers do much better when both parents use the same techniques with them in a consistent way.

Say: Positive discipline is a great way to protect your child from harm. Remember that hitting your child only makes them scared and compliant out of fear. You want them to make good choices and know right from wrong all the time. Give positive guidance a try!

See if the groups has any final questions. When possible, allow other parents to help answer the questions.
Objective: Participants learn how to manage difficult moments with children in a positive way.

Key messages:

Infants:

• When infants feel loved, they can listen better.
• When we shake babies or hit children, we can cause disabilities or even death.
• Blindness, brain damage, loss of hearing, and cerebral palsy can all be caused by physical punishment, especially with babies and small children.

Toddlers:

• When we yell at our children, they feel afraid and confused.
• Very young children do not understand why they are being scolded and do not know what you want them to do.
• Toddlers can’t stop themselves because they can’t understand right from wrong, don’t have impulse control from front part of brain to stop from doing wrong, and don’t know their own emotions.

Materials needed:

• List of participants and their children’s names
• Mats for sitting

How to prepare:

• Practice reading the session out loud.
• Set up the sitting mats.

Secrets to Being Happy Parents

Welcome the Participants

Say: Welcome to session 12 of our program! It’s wonderful to see everyone here. Each time we meet, we will learn how to raise happy, healthy, and smart children. Remember: You are your children’s best teachers!

Next, you can sing your ECD 0–3 hello song chosen by the families.

Say: Let’s begin by singing a song with actions. This song is called “It’s Time to Put Your Things Away, Things Away. It’s Time to Put Your Things Away and Clean Up” (to the tune of “London Bridge Is Falling Down”).

This is a song to help children clean up when they do not want to do so!

Ask: Did the children like this song? Invite some parents to answer.

Say: Today we are learning about how to manage difficult moments with children.

[Note to facilitator: The children can now go to their play area with your co-facilitator.]

Ask: How has everyone been doing since our last meeting?

Ask: What was the topic of our last meeting?

Ask: What strategies did you use from the positive discipline sessions?

Ask: How did you adapt them for your children?

Ask: Did you find anything difficult about practicing the game: see it, feel it, fix it, and win it? Invite some parents to answer. With the help of other parents if possible, try to help with their problem.

After all have had a chance to share, make positive points about the sharing and experiences.

Say: Today we are going to learn simple and effective secrets to managing your children’s difficult behaviors.
Getting Ready to Play Games

Say: In this meeting, we are going to learn some games corresponding to the age groups of our children; from 0 to 6 months, 6 to 12 months, 1 to 2 years, and 2 to 3 years.

- Show each picture and ask parents to describe what they see as well as other Reflection Questions on the flip chart. Use the questions on the back of flip chart.
- Also find out if they can relate the pictures to their own life and request few examples from them.

Say: This picture represents the game “……” It is one of the games you can play with a child aged____.

Say: Let us now learn how to play the game.

Teach all four games, explained below.

After teaching the parents the games, ask the parents to go into groups according to the age of the children to practice playing the games with the children. Walk around to see how the parents are playing.

Practice Session

Say: Always make sure to wash your hands with soap under running water before touching your baby.

- Facilitators outline steps for playing the games with each age group and observe them as they practice in the various groups.
- Facilitators move around each group and encourage open sharing of ideas.

Give an opportunity for the different age groups representative to play with their children in a plenary session one after the other.
Game 1 Birth to 6 months

Say: We are going to play “Swaddle, Swing, and Shhh.”

Say: Here are three tips to help calm a newborn. Sometimes we can get very frustrated with our small babies who cry. Demonstrate with a doll.

- Tip 1: Swaddle the baby’s arms, but make sure to leave the hips loose.
- Tip 2: While supporting the baby’s head, gently swing the baby back and forth.

Say: This swinging motion is very relaxing because the baby always bounced up and down in the womb.

- Tip 3: While still holding the baby, make a loud and constant “sh” near the baby’s ears.

Say: Babies relax when they hear this noise because this is what the womb sounds like.

Say: Now try this with your child in small groups.
Say: The second game is called “Calm and Explain.”

Say: Here is a tip to calm a child and explain what happened.

- Say: If your child is crying, you can also calm the child by taking her/him outside and talking about the surroundings and then going through what happened.

- Scenario: ___(name) gets very scared and starts crying. Her father takes her outside. He talks to her about the things that they see. Then, he talks to her about what happened and why it was scary.

- Say: Now try this with your child in small groups. You can take your child outside and talk about what you see, feel, and hear. Then, talk about how it makes them feel. This helps to make them present.

For example: Let’s go outside. Can you feel the cool air on your face? Can you hear the birds? Can you smell the leaves?

Ask: What do your children learn through this process?

Say: Your children learn that they are safe and can calm down with your help.
The third game is called “Count to Five before a Change.”

Here is a tip to have a calmer and more confident child.

Your child will behave better if he/she has a warning that a change is about to happen. Sudden changes cause anxiety, and the child can misbehave out of frustration.

When something is about to change, you can say, “when I count to five, we are going to...” This counting is done calmly, as a way to show time, not as a punishment.

The secret is that you need to be consistent and do what you say.

Scenario: _____(name) is playing outside, and it is time for dinner. His father tells him that he is going to count to five and then they will come in for dinner: “One, two, three, four, five—let's go in.” ________ goes in calmly.

When could you use this?

Now discuss in small groups when you could use this counting approach.

What do your children learn through this process?

Your children learn that their environment is predictable and safe. They know what is going to happen.

* For children with hearing loss, you can also use your fingers to count to five and get closer.
Say: The fourth game is called “Explain and Model.”

Say: When your child is misbehaving, explain and model through words and actions.

Say: When your child is misbehaving, explain why the behavior is undesired. Model the desired response through your words and actions.

Scenario: ___ pulls his brother’s hair. His father explains that when he does this, it hurts his brother, and he shows the child how to gently stroke the brother’s hair.

Say: Now discuss in small groups a situation where your child misbehaved. Role-play how you could explain and model.

Ask: What do your children learn through this process?

Say: Your children learn why a behavior is harmful and an alternative way to act. They are too young to know what not to do.

* Emphasize visual modeling with children with hearing loss and speech modeling for those with low vision. Remind parents to be patient with children with disabilities.
In Plenary Session:

Reporting Back

- Give time for each group to share at least three main relevant points with the large group.
- Facilitators also share “SUGGESTED ACTIONS” as outlined in the flip chart during the plenary session.

Refer to the flip chart per game. Ask the group what they learned from the games and wait for parents to share their responses. You may go back to Reflection Questions if necessary.

- Using the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart as a guide for discussion, let parents talk about the key messages per each group around playing as a tool for learning and how they may be able to put them into action at home.
- Facilitators should then bridge the knowledge gaps by emphasizing the most important key points as outlined in the “KEY MESSAGES” in the flip chart.

Conclusion

Ask: Why is it important not to hit or yell at our children? Invite answers.
Say: When we shake babies or hit children, it can lead to disabilities or even death. Blindness, brain damage, loss of hearing, and cerebral palsy can all be caused by physical punishment, especially with babies and small children.
Say: Your children always need to feel loved. This helps them to grow up into happy, confident, and smart children. The more your baby feels safe and loved by you, the smarter your baby will become!
Say: Your children need to learn from you how to talk and act. They are very young and do not know how to behave. You can show them and help them find the words.
Ask: What strategies can you use to manage frustrating situations? Invite answers.

Ask: Who here will practice these skills at home with their children during the next two weeks? Participants who are committed can raise their hands. The facilitator acknowledges the parents who are committed to playing the games at home and assure them s/he will be exited to hear from them the outcome of playing the games with their children in the next meeting.

Check to see if there are any questions or other things they wish to share.
Step 5
Reminder about next meeting and goodbye

Say: Our next meeting will be [date and time]. I want you again to choose two new volunteers who will remind all the families about the meeting so nobody forgets.

Say: Let’s sing our goodbye song all together now.

Say: Bye, everybody. Thank you for coming today. Let’s give our children a big hug and tell them that it is time to go home.

We will see you in the next meeting on _______ (confirm date of next meeting).
Session 13  Protecting Our Children from Accidents

Objective: Participants learn how to identify threats to young children’s safety and prevent accidents.

Key messages:

Infants:

- Infants depend on parents and caregivers for their safety and need to be supervised at all times.
- Small objects (less than 1.25 inches) are a choking hazard, including small buttons, coins, etc.
- Place a baby on his/her back to prevent sudden infant death syndrome.

Toddlers:

- Accidents are more common when children are cared for by someone younger than 12 years old or are left alone.
- Do not let toddlers play with plastic bags or put them on their heads.
- Do not allow toddlers to walk or run with food or an object in their mouth.

Materials needed:

- List of participants and their children’s names
- Mats for sitting

How to prepare:

- Practice reading the session out loud.
- Collect all of the materials needed (listed above).
- Set up the sitting mats.

Game 1

Birth to 6 months

As facilitators observe the practice session, they should promote the activity of parents playing with their children. Give encouragement and notice out loud the good things you see.

Facilitators should ensure parents learn all four games they can play with their children.

Say: We’re going to talk about finding big toys. In this game, make, find, and give your child big toys that are safe to play with and don’t pose a choking hazard.

Say: The first situation we are going to talk about is choking.

Ask: What can young children choke on?

Ask: Can someone give me a situation when a child might choke?

Ask: What could you do to prevent this from happening? Parents discuss in small groups and share.

Say: Young children can choke on anything smaller than the size of their palm. Keep small things high up and out of reach of children.
Say: We’re going to learn about keeping dangerous items out of reach.

Say: The second situation we are going to talk about is eating or drinking harmful substances.

Ask: What kinds of things are dangerous for children to eat or drink?

Ask: Can someone give me a situation when a child might eat or drink a harmful substance?

Ask: What could you do to prevent this from happening? Parents discuss in small groups and share.

Say: Young children will put everything in their mouths. Keep harmful things out of reach.
The third situation we are going to talk about is electrical outlets at a child’s level.

Can someone tell me why electrical outlets are so attractive to small children?

Perhaps because they are at their eye level; their parents use them, and children like to copy their parents; or children are naturally very curious, and the small holes are the perfect size for their small fingers.

What happens when children put their fingers into electrical outlets?

Children can be electrocuted. It is extremely dangerous—electrocution can result in death.

What causes a child to get electrocuted?

If a child sticks his or her fingers into an outlet. If a child sticks a piece of metal into an outlet.

What could you do to prevent this from happening? Parents discuss in small groups and share.

Young children are naturally very curious and are easily attracted to electrical outlets, since they are at their height and are small enough for their fingers to fit in. Always supervise your children and, if possible, have electrical outlets installed at a higher level or covered with plastic shields.
The fourth situation we are going to talk about is accidental falls.

Can someone give me a situation when a child might fall and get very badly injured?

Children can fall from the staircase, balcony, windows, attic, or our outside.

What could you do to prevent this from happening? Parents discuss in small groups and share.

Young children can fall and get very badly hurt when they are not supervised. Their sense of balance is not fully developed. Always supervise your children and create barriers wherever possible.
In a Plenary Session:

Reporting Back

- Give time for each group to share at least three main relevant points with the large group.
- Facilitators also share "SUGGESTED ACTIONS" as outlined in the flip chart during the plenary session.

Refer to the flip chart per game. Ask the group what they learned from the games and wait for parents to share their responses. You may go back to Reflection Questions if necessary.

- Using the "KEY MESSAGES" in the flipchart as a guide for discussion, let parents talk about the key messages per each group around playing as a tool for learning and how they may be able to put them into action at home.
- Facilitators should then bridge the knowledge gaps by emphasizing the most important key points as outlined in the "KEY MESSAGES" in the flip chart.

Conclusion

Say: Let's review what we learned today.

Ask: What things in our homes can be dangerous to children? Invite answers.

Ask: Who in the family is responsible for making sure your children are safe? Invite answers.

Say: Yes! All adults in the family are responsible for watching over young children. Remember that as caregivers, it is our responsibility to ensure that the spaces where children play and live are safe.

Ask: Who here will ensure that the spaces where our children live and play are safe during the next two weeks? Participants who are committed can raise their hands. The facilitator acknowledges the parents who are committed to playing the games at home and assure them s/he will be exited to hear from them the outcome of playing the games with their children in the next meeting.

Check to see if there are any questions or other things they wish to share.
Step 5
Goodbye
5 minutes

Say: Today, we completed the final session on ECD! We have learned helpful lessons and fun activities to help our babies grow. While we completed all sessions here in our group, it is now up to you and your families to continue playing the games we learned at home. Remember to refer to the ECD brochure whenever you need reminders about our sessions, and please reach out to the community health worker in your community if you have any questions.

Say: Let's sing our goodbye song all together now. If you are having a celebration with certificates and/or refreshments, please complete this now.

Say: Bye, everybody. One more time, let's give our children a big hug and tell them that it is time to go home.
